UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH IS A GEM OF ARCHITECTURE

Services to Be Held in the New Stealey Heights Structure Today.

One of the highest points in progressive suburb of Stealey Heights stands a monument to the zeal of the pastor and congregation of the Duff street United Brethren church.

The new church of the congregation, just completed at a cost of $5,000. The first service will be held in the new edifice today. At the seats have not yet arrived for the main auditorium. Services will be held in the spacious Sunday school room, which, by a fine arrangement, can be opened so as to be the pulpit.

Dedication May 14. The church will be formally dedicated on Sunday, May 14. Bishop Weekly, of Parkersburg, will be the dedicatory sermon at the hour for morning worship. Rev. Mr. Weekly is bishop of the east district of the church, which comprises the states of West Virginia, Maryland and a part of Pennsylvania. In the afternoon there will be a platform for all the ministers of Stealey and its suburbs.

The new church, which is 51x94 contains twenty-two separate rooms, is a gem of architecture. Although there are many churches in Stealey having much larger congregations than the Duff street United Brethren, few can boast of a more fitting edifice.

Seats for the main auditorium expected to arrive this week and it is possible that they will be in place in time for next Sunday's service. There is no certainty as to whether, but it is thought that they will be sure to be installed by following Sunday.

Dreams Come True. The agitation for a new place of worship for the congregation was started by the Rev. W. M. Stealey, who took charge of the congregation eighteen months ago. Members of the congregation had realized some time that a new structure was needed, and it took only the aggressive spirit of the Rev. Mr. Stealey and his untiring efforts in that direction to make the new church a reality.

Rev. Mr. Stealey and members of the church saw their dreams come true in the latter part of 1915, when workmen began erecting the old church from its site on the corner of Duff street and Stealey avenue. About the first of excavating work was begun for the building of the new edifice.

In the meantime a tabernacle had been built on Stealey avenue and services were conducted in this. The tabernacle had been built only as a temporary place of worship, however, and was not constructed so as to be comfortable in cold weather. So it was that when winter set in services were conducted in the F. I. Day building on Milford street. Today, for the first time since the latter part of last June, members of the church will go to the corner of Duff street and Baker avenue to worship.

Finished in Golden Oak. Both on the exterior and interior the new church is a thing of beauty. It is the last word in architecture and its pleasing arrangement. It is built of a beautiful white brick, which shows up well at a distance as well as at close range. On the interior it is finished throughout in golden oak. Its seating capacity is estimated at about 900.

In the basement of the church is a large social room with a kitchen and dining room. There is also a lecture room and some class rooms in the basement. The arrangement there is well nigh perfect and has brought forth words of admiration from all who have inspected the church.

The structure is equipped with a modern hot water heating system, the furnace of which is stationed in the basement. The heating system is said to be one of the best obtainable, and no trouble during cold weather is expected.

On the upper floor are the main auditorium, a Sunday school room and four galleries. The auditorium will seat 350 persons, and with the galleries and Sunday school room the total seating capacity of the church is estimated at about 900.

Memorial Windows. In the main auditorium are three very beautiful memorial windows, given by citizens of Stealey Heights. There are numerous other smaller windows. The three big windows were given by the Lydia Stealey heirs in memory of Andrew Lydia Stealey and Emma Jane Stealey; Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Day, in memory of Mr. Day's parents; and Mrs. Alexander Duff in memory of her husband. The smaller windows were given by other residents of the suburb and by some of the Sunday school classes of the church.

A rolling partition separates the Sunday school room from the main auditorium. In case of a large crowd, the partition can be quickly raised and the overflow crowd placed in the Sunday school room, from where they would have a full view of the pulpit.

Fine Parsonage. The parsonage adjoining the church is also a fine building. It is two stories in height and modern in every respect. Although he has been here only eighteen months, the Rev. Mr. Stealey has, in that time, increased his congregation by 101 members. This fact alone speaks volumes for this minister, who is loved and admired by every member of his congregation.

LITTLE BOY

Picked Up on Street by the Police Refuses to Divulge His Identity.

A little boy, about 7 years of age, who was apparently lost, was picked up on the streets Saturday night and taken to the police station, where he refused to give any information about himself, other than to say that he lived on Kelly Hill.

The fact that he stoutly refused to tell his name or his exact address led police to believe that he had run away from home, and feared that he would be returned to his parents if his identity was divulged.

Not until someone suggested that he came from the gypsy camp did the little fellow make any statement at all about himself. "No I didn't come from the gypsy camp," he said, half smiling and half angry. The suggestion was made with the idea that it would bring a retort from the boy. The youth then said that he lived on Kelly Hill, but after giving this information about himself, refrained from answering any further questions.

Later in the night Policeman Thomas Gill took the little fellow to Kelly Hill and he was restored to his parent who live on Brown street. The name of his parents was not learned. It was said that the youth had been selling papers Saturday afternoon and had not returned home. The boy's motive for not going home was not stated.

BARN AND SILOS WILL HELP MUCH

In the Wintering of Live Stock According to What is Shown at Farmers' Meeting.

As the farmers were busy with spring work, the attendance at the farmers' meeting at the court house Saturday afternoon was not quite as large as usual. However, the interest was good and the meeting proved quite instructive and helpful.

William D. Zinn, county agent, had charge of the meeting. Barns and silos were discussed at considerable length. It was agreed that every farm where there is live stock should have a barn. It should be built high with plenty of mow room as largely increased production and manure saved from the barn will demand a large amount of foodstuffs. Cattle should have plenty of room in the barn. The barn need not necessarily be an expensive structure. The floor should be of cement. It was observed that cattle kept in barns require less food than if they are allowed to run on ranges during the day and sheltered at night.

It was brought out that every farm which has eight head of live stock and four acres of level and tillable soil should have a silo. No particular model of silo was recommended as all the standard kinds are suitable for the county.

Nat. T. Frame, of Morgantown, state leader in farm work, was present and he gave an interesting review of what is being done in various counties in the state.

E. E. Cartwright, cow tester for Harrison, Marion and Upshur counties, gave some striking figures showing the fine effects of feeding cows silage.

The county agent announced that he had spent four days of the week in the county. One was on Booth's creek, two at Bridgeport and one at the Trinity school house on Brushy fork, where he attended school closing exercises and addressed parents and children.

The coming Tuesday will be spent by the county agent around town, Wednesday he will be at Meadowbrook and Thursday and Friday he will hold a joint meeting at Wyatt with the county agent of Marion county. Saturday afternoon he will hold the usual meeting in the court house here, the topic of which meeting will be announced later.

Mr. Zinn announces that he is ready to give pruning demonstrations whenever desired.

Bassell, former president of the county court and a well known farmer and stockman, died at her home at Interstate at 6 o'clock Saturday evening following a thirteen days' illness of pneumonia. Mrs. Bassell had been critically ill for the last week, and while the news of her death came as a great shock to her family and large circle of friends, it was not unexpected.

Mrs. Bassell was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benton Goodloe, of Nelson county, Va., and was a member of the Hebrew Baptist church, of that county.

IMMENSE THROG ATTEND OPENING

Of the Morrison Store Company, Successors to the T. J. Lynch Company.

The Morrison Store Company made its initial bow to the shoppers of Clarksbu and this vicinity Saturday when it threw the doors of its store open and welcomed the thousands of shoppers who crowded the city Saturday to inspect the store. This popular company purchased the T. J. Lynch Company store on West Main street and thoroughly overhauled it before opening it to the public.

The store now presents a fine appearance and will soon forge to the front as one of the city's leading department stores. From the reception it received from the shoppers Saturday it can readily be seen that the new store will not only hold the large trade enjoyed by the T. J. Lynch Company but will soon win many new customers.

From the time the store's doors were opened Saturday morning until they were closed Saturday night a constant stream of shoppers filed through the store inspecting the goods displayed and buying whatever they wanted.

The proprietors of the store were busy meeting the shoppers and presenting every one that entered the store with a carnation for a souvenir. This company is prepared to handle the ever increasing trade which it is deserving of, and which it will more than likely get.

BURGOYNE ONCE A FAIRMONT PRINTER

Millionaire Who Lies Dead in Florida Palace, Started as Poor Boy.

FAIRMONT, April 1.—The meteoric career of Charles G. Burgoyne, former Fairmont printer, and later millionaire of New York and Florida, came to an end Friday in Daytona, Fla. News of his death was received here Saturday by Joseph Wetherman, a half brother, who was told of the death and the fact that the funeral will be held in Daytona on Monday. Started as "Devil."

Born in Fairmont about seventy years ago, Mr. Burgoyne was a poor boy, but managed to educate himself in the public schools of his time. He secured a position as "devil" in a local printing office and gradually mastered the trade, becoming an expert type setter. A longing for the big cities came over him when about 20 years of age and he left his home here to wander over the country, working in various cities.

Finally the young printer landed in New York city and it proved to be his future home. On the World, with other Fairmont printers, he worked for a time, but finally drifted into more lucrative vocations, finally becoming a broker on Wall street.

It has been twenty-five years since Mr. Burgoyne visited Fairmont. Then he was more than a millionaire. Fairmonters who saw him recently in New York and Florida, say he accumulated many millions. When Waytonia became one of the greatest winter places of the South he built the finest home that faces the famous beach there. His time was spent between the south in the winter and New York in the summer, with his wife, who survives. He had no children. Fairmonters just returning from Florida speak of the elegance of his winter home of his yacht and of his great hospitality when his old friends and comrades from West Virginia would come to see him.

Doherty, head of the Doherty interests of New York, took to his bed in a hotel here this afternoon, postponing indefinitely settlement of the street car tie-up which has been in effect since last Tuesday. The nature of the illness was not officially disclosed, but it is said to be an ear affection.

The announcement came when a night conference scheduled for 7 o'clock tonight between the two factions was adjourned.

The illness also postponed action of Mayor Charles M. Milroy in his announced intention of asking for a receiver to take over the lines and start the cars. Another conference has been set for Sunday afternoon, but will not be held unless Mr. Doherty is able to attend, it is said.

Other factions entered tonight in the disagreement between the company and its employees. Signal men of the Lake Shore railroad endorsed the street car men's union as did also members of the order of railway telegraphers in the employ of the New York Central lines.
